He was also awarded Top Physician in New Jersey in 2008.

Dr. Yen focuses on the diagnosis and treatment of patients with joint, muscle, nerve, spine and sports related pain and works closely with his patients to achieve maximum pain relief to enhance quality of life. He provides patients with an individual program of integrated pain management therapies, drawing on his expertise in pain medicine and the wide range of treatments available. Dr. Yen has successfully treated thousands of patients without the use of surgery.

Dr Yen offers a full range of treatments for acute and chronic pain, including interventional spine procedures, electrodiagnostic studies, manipulation under anesthesia, trigger point injections, joint injections, epidural steroid injections, facet joint injections, sacroiliac steroid joint injections, medial branch blocks, radiofrequency neurolysis, discography, lumbar endoscopic discectomy and spinal cord stimulation.

Interventional pain management is one of the newest and most exciting specialties in medicine for managing back and neck pain. It represents an exciting frontier and follows the trend of minimally invasive therapy. Dr. Yen is committed to the relief of pain, whether the patient is a long-term sufferer or newly injured.

When not attending to his patients, Dr. Yen is an avid golfer and gourmet cook with a passion for playing the saxophone. He is the proud father of two boys Ethan and Sawyer.
